

ARREST OF PAIR SATURDAY WILL CLEAR UP ABDUCTION CASES

When their sentences of sixty days each respectively, in the Lucas County Workhouse at Toledo and the State Reformatory for Women at Marysville expires Saturday, February 26, Gus Clements and Virginia Brady, both of Lima, O., will be returned to Xenia to face charges of complicity in the abduction of a seventeen-year-old girl from the O. S. and S. O. Home November 20, 1926.

Sheriff Ohmer Tate holds warrants for the arrest of the couple on kidnapping charges, based on affidavits filed with R. O. Copey, justice of the peace, by Superintendent T. E. Andrews, of the Home, who declines to reveal the name of the girl.

Bert Lewis, Lima, also charged with being implicated in the plot to spirit the girl away from the institution, was held to the grand jury early in February for abduction. He pleaded not guilty. His case will be considered at the next session of the jury.

Lewis told authorities he was innocent of any connection with the episode other than being the driver of the auto in which the girl was taken away, but implicated Clements and Virginia Brady as having engineered the plot, while the girl was spending her vacation in Lima.

Clements is a brother of Lewis' wife. Both he and his alleged woman confederate were fined $50 each and sentenced to sixty days imprisonment for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, when Superintendent Andrews discovered the kidnapping and established the identity of the girls' alleged abductors. Lewis also served a workhouse sentence in addition to paying a fine.

Sheriff Tate expects to send officers to Toledo and Marysville to rearrest and return Clements and the Brady woman to Xenia immediately upon their release from prison.

MRS. WM. LAMPERT DIES ON WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Mildred Lampert, 39, wife of William Lampert, passed away at the home of her parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lampert, 836 N. King St., Wednesday night at 11 o'clock. Although Mrs. Lampert had been seriously ill some time, suffering from a tumorous growth, her death came unexpectedly.

Mr. and Mrs. Lampert and their family came to Xenia from their home in San Fernando, Cal., three weeks ago. Mrs. Lampert immediately entered Espey Hospital where she remained two weeks for treatment. She left the hospital last Saturday when her condition was thought much improved.

Mrs. Lampert lived in St. Louis, Mo., before her marriage and her entire immediate family preceded her in death. She leaves her husband and three children, William, Jr., 10; Sanford, 8 and Mary Catherine, 6 years.

Funeral services will be held at the Lampert home, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. W. H. Tilford. Interment will take place in Woodland Cemetery.

SYMPHONY CONCERT AT WILBERFORCE IS HEARD WEDNESDAY

As a prelude to the annual Founders' Day celebration at Wilberforce University Thursday afternoon, the famed Wilberforce symphony orchestra, composed of sixty pieces, delivered a concert in Shorter Hall auditorium at the university Wednesday evening.

The orchestra is under the direction of Professor William A. Sykes, head of the conservatory of music at the university, and much credit is due him for its success.

A large and enthusiastic audience attended the musicale, and filled the hall to capacity.

Ten numbers were rendered interspersed by vocal selections by Miss Lucile Dean, operatic soprano, and Robert P. Ecton, robust tenor, the two soloists carried by the orchestra. Both accepted repeated encores.

One of the first orchestral selections on the program was "One Fine Day," selected from the opera "Madame Butterfly." The selection "Miserere," taken from the opera "Il Trovatore," led by Miss Lucile Dean, Mr. Ecton and accompanied by a male chorus of thirteen voices, was also well received. There was also chimes and orchestra accompaniment.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. —Adv.

During the intermission between the first and second parts of the program, Mr. Ecton responded to repeated requests with spiritual songs. He was accompanied by Miss Anna M. Terry, music teacher at the university.

The program closed with a Hungarian dance number of Brahms-Sykes, beautifully rendered by the orchestra, with accompaniment of a pipe organ and chimes.

Founders' Day exercises Thursday afternoon at Shorter auditorium at 2:30 o'clock were featured by an address by N. B. Young, president of Lincoln University at Jefferson City, Mo., who holds a degree of doctor of literature.

Regular monthly vesper services will be held Sunday when the feature speech will be delivered by Reese Edgar Tullis, president of Wilberforce College. Spirituals and jubilee songs in addition to pipe organ and male chorus selections and specialty numbers are included on the program of the services.

XENIANS REPORTED SAFE IN SHANGHAI

George D. Geyer, received a cable, Thursday morning, announcing that his mother, Mrs. Carrie D. Geyer and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Willmott and family, fears for whose safety in China have been entertained, have arrived at Shanghai.

Direct word from the local party has been missing for several weeks and after the Chinese uprisings, local relatives were fearful for their safety. They are in this locality where Mr. Willmott is head of a boys' mission school.

FIRST U. P. CHURCH SOCIETY ANNUAL MEET

Many things contributed to make the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, First U. P. Church, a delightful occasion. Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. T. L. Magruder was the hostess with Mrs. E. C. Moorman, president, presiding and Mrs. J. S. Van Eaton, leading the impressive devotional service. The latter was assisted by other members of the society.

Responses to roll call were made with Scripture selections prepared by Miss Mary Bradford. The regular routine of business was omitted for want of time. Amusement combined with instruction was the chief feature of a sketch "The Fountain of Youth."

Those taking part in the sketch included Mrs. Moorman, Mrs. J. P. Lytle, Mrs. Charles Ervin, Mrs. Elbert Andrews and the Misses Ruth Waddle and Mary Bell Mansfield. The clever playlet was thoroughly enjoyed.

An election of officers followed the program, with the following results: Mrs. E. C. Moorman, president; Mrs. J. P. Lytle, first vice president; Mrs. C. S. Hagler, second vice president; Mrs. A. M. Patterson, secretary; Mrs. George Wheeler, treasurer; Mrs. C. S. Frazier, thank offering secretary; Mrs. Adda Bailey, literature and extension department secretary; Mrs. Walter Dean, temperance secretary; Mrs. Jeanette Irvin, woman's association work secretary; Mrs. Herman Eavey, junior work superintendent and Mrs. E. H. Carruthers, press correspondent.

The meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer.

NINTH WEDDING DATE CELEBRATED

Friends and neighbors called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gotherman, of Port William, Monday evening, to assist in the celebration of their ninth wedding anniversary. The guests arrived unannounced and a delightful social time was enjoyed.

An elaborate menu of delicious food was served cafeteria style. The anniversary cake with the requisite number of candles held the place of honor.

The guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Babb, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Woods and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Devore, Mr. and Mrs. David Devore, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Woods, Lynn Woods, William Devore, Mrs. Cecil Haworth, Miss Reva Devore and Miss Norah Linkhart, Mary and Ruth Gotherman.

MOOSE DANCE

A "fifty-fifty" dance will be given Monday evening, Feb. 28, at Moose Hall, W. Main St., at 8 p. m. Jones five-piece orchestra will furnish the music. The dance committee has a good time in store for all dance lovers. The public is invited to attend.

OLD STOMACHS MADE NEW

So You Eat What You Like Without Distress

Diapensin is a powerful influence in the digestion of meat, eggs, cheese, butter, fats, bread, white flour food, cereals and almost everything we eat. Thus, when you chew one or two of these remarkable digesters you practically get a new stomach, even if it seems old, played out and capable only of handling a spoonful of soup and a small cracker.

A host of people, apprehensive of stomach ulcers and catarrh of the stomach, soon discovered that Diapensin removed all the pain, flatness, gasiness, sour, acid risings—cause of headache, biliousness, sleeplessness and many other distresses, besides promoting a hearty appetite and increasing health and strength. By all means try these digesters. Get a 60 cent package of Diapensin at any drug store. Adv.

CHAPTER OBSERVES WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Daughters of the American Revolution, Cedar Cliff chapter, celebrated Washington's Birthday by holding their annual banquet at Ye Olde Cedar Inn.

The Inn has been re-decorated and with its antique furnishings, made a very pleasing background for such an occasion.

Covers were laid for thirty-eight members, husbands and friends and a three-course dinner was served.

The regent, Mrs. Howard Turnbull, as toastmistress, introduced Professor B. E. Robinson, who gave a most inspiring talk. He supplied his hearers with a keener insight into the life and character of George Washington and refuted the idea, often expressed, that people should not look back to past achievements, but should only think of the present and future.

"We build on the past and choose the leaders who have the characteristics of those heroes whom we laud," he said.

Several films of moving pictures of some of the beauty spots of America, were also shown by Mr. W. W. Galloway.

CLUB SURPRISES MR. AND MRS. TOMS

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Toms were delightfully surprised by members of the J. F. P. Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Lewis, E. Second St., Wednesday evening.

The party was planned in celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Toms' fifth wedding anniversary and the couple was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers.

Cards and contests were participated in by members during the evening and much enjoyment was derived from a "Cat's Meow" contest in which Mrs. Edna Graham was awarded a prize for excellence, and Mrs. Charles Toms a prize for the funniest interpretation.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee, with tiny hatchets as favors, were served at a late hour.

About forty guests were present at the affair.

J. F. P. CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

J. F. P. Club members were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. Edna Graham, W. Church St., with a Valentine party, Tuesday evening.

Forty members were present and an enjoyable evening was spent at cards and contests. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Lawrence Soward and Mr. Lawrence Manor.

A delicious refreshment course was served by the committee in charge composed of Mrs. Wiley McCoy and Mrs. Virgil Martin. Entertainment was arranged by Mrs. Lawrence Luttrell and Mrs. Orman Simson.

The club will be entertained next month at the home of Miss Edith Jackson, Dayton Ave.

Visitors at the affair Tuesday included Mrs. Margaret Spahr, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Spahr and Miss Marcell Myers.

Mr. Allen Carpe, who spent the weekend with his mother and other Xenia relatives, returned on Tuesday to New York City. His aunt, Miss Allen, entertained a party of his friends Monday evening at dinner, with table appointments appropriate to the George Washington anniversary.

Miss Florence White and Mrs. A. S. Lewis, of Clifton, spent Thursday in Springfield on a shopping trip.

Mrs. M. A. Ault, Clifton, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ault, at Greenfield, Ill.

Messrs. J. B. Rife, W. C. Rife, A. J. Collins and the Rev. J. G. Webster, all of Clifton, attended the group conference at the First U. P. Church in Xenia, Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary E. Boolman, Clifton, entertained the Ladies' Aid Society of the Clifton Methodist Episcopal Church, Wednesday afternoon.

COMMISSION MEETS

Little business of importance is expected to be transacted by City Commission at its regular meeting at City Hall Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock, according to City Auditor T. H. Zell. The meeting, it is prophesied, will be a quiet and brief one.

Turns Back Clock

Trinity M. E. Church choir will meet for rehearsal Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All members are requested to be present, to rehearse the new Easter music.

Meeting of Pride of Xenia Thimble Club which was to have been held Friday, has been postponed until two weeks from that day.

Women's Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian Church will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. W. B. McCallister, N. King St., Friday afternoon. Prayer circle is scheduled for 2:15 o'clock and a program will follow. The hostess will be assisted by Mrs. Paul Espey, Mrs. C. C. Henrie and Mrs. E. D. Smith.

A covered dish dinner will precede the regular business meeting of American Legion Auxiliary, at Post Hall, Monday evening, Feb. 28, at 6 o'clock. Mrs. W. A. Labron, Mrs. W. H. Mills, Mrs. D. J. Hollenbach and Miss Mary Foody compose the committee in charge.

Mr. Frank J. Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cain, S. Columbus St., who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the McClellan Hospital, is improving nicely.

Mr. John Jeffries, 123 Dayton Ave., has been ill for the past several weeks at the home of his niece, Mrs. Fred Haller, suffering from complications. His condition shows but slight improvement.

Mr. John Rector of the Wilmington Pike, has been ill several days with grip.

Mr. Aaron Turner, E. Third St., is convalescent after an attack of grip.

Mr. William Baker, formerly of this city and nephew of Mr. W. E. Houser, is critically ill with typhoid fever at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Baker, Lakeland, Pa.

WHAT to WEAR and HOW to WEAR IT

By LUCY CLAIRE
Favorite Fashion Adviser of the Smart Set.

Occasions seem to be constantly arising, even in the most well regulated existence, when the costume cannot be definitely catalogued for its hour of the day. Or perhaps your program is so crowded that one frock must make its appearance at a series of events and for instances like this, you wish to have what I call the "all occasion" dress, for it may fall in any category by slightly stretching the bounds of definition.

Let us look first at the dress of beige georgette crepe at the right with its pleated skirt and wide strips of open work hemstitching. I can imagine this on a morning shopping tour, it does not offend me at the tea table, nor do I feel it would be out of place at an informal dinner in a restaurant or hotel. And the reason for its success and versatility, you will notice, is because of its simplicity and absence of extremes in any treatment.

At the left I have shown you a dress of fine French flannel. I know that you will immediately place this in either the tailored mode or the sport class. Yet observe closely and you will see that its period of usefulness has been extended past these hours by its added intricacy of pattern and cut. The surprise crossing which we are more familiar with extending from the front to the back, has been just reversed in this case forming a third tier on the already two-tiered skirt and joining in the front with a single pearl buckle. I am certain that you cannot imagine yourself feeling uncomfortable in this dress between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m.

On several previous occasions I have told you about the increasing tendency toward a jacket mode and right now I observe at many of the smart luncheon parties a reflection of this favor. For example, the two jackets which I have illustrated here were worn beneath the coat but right over the dress. A little later in the season you will see them worn on the street in just this manner, with the absence of the top coat of course.

The model illustrated above is not intended to fasten together—its gayly checked pattern of black and white is for decoration only. But the little double breasted model beneath looks smart only when it is fastened over with its four buttons (b) that the neat mannish reverses are held in place.

Here's Real Relief From the Torturing Pains of Neuritis

Men and Women Everywhere Seldom Fail To Get Quick Relief From Pain and Suffering

When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to some good druggist and get a bottle of Allenbur's Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form.

Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about twenty-four hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished those persisting nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights. While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in most forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.

You needn't be afraid of its concentrating dose of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can at the best give only partial relief.

Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenbur's Special Formula No. 2—Sayre's Drug Store sells lots of it. —Adv.

GROOM NEEDED DRINK NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 24.—It's perfectly all right for a young fellow to "take a couple of stiff charges" of something stronger than water when he's about to be married, ruled Judge Bertelsman in police court here today when William Railing, of Norwood, O., faced him on a charge of intoxication.

Railing, it was said, tried to obtain a marriage license on Washington's birthday, and said nasty things when he couldn't get the Court House door open. Railing said he had taken a "few drinks" to work up a little nerve for the ordeal. The records at the clerk's office show that he has not applied for a license since.

Under the proposed plan, the plant may be obtained and constructed without putting the question to a vote of the people and upon the completion of construction, turned over to the village as a complete unit. At the time of the completion of the system, a mortgage is placed on it, payable by interest from earnings of the plant and not in any way a lien upon the taxes of the village.

Outlines of this play were formally presented to the village mayor and council in a letter at the regular meeting Monday night. Upon consideration it was decided to hold a mass meeting of citizens in the assembly room of the Opera House next Wednesday, so that townspeople may become better acquainted with the project by learning of it from representatives of the two companies involved, the Jennings-Lawrence Co., engineers, Columbus, and the bond company.

Three men, charged with illegal possession of liquor, are being held in the County Jail pending disposition of their cases, following their arrest by Sheriff Olmer Tate and Deputy Sheriff George Sugden, about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Trone Milburn and Ed Fox were found guilty of possessing liquor, by R. O. Copsey, justice of the peace, Thursday morning. They pleaded not guilty. Sentence was withheld by the court for three days pending motions for new trials.

L. A. Judy, the third man arrested, is also charged with possessing liquor, but his case was continued Wednesday until further order of the court.

Answering a report that Milburn's automobile, also occupied by Fox and Judy, had been driven by him into a ditch on the Upper Bellbrook Pike, the officers drove to a point several miles from the city, and then trailed the car for two miles into Xenia, observing the trio's movements before making the arrests.

They had succeeded in extricating the machine from the ditch.

This Great Healing Oil Must Banish Eczema and Skin Troubles

Or Your Money Back. That's the Plan on Which Emerald Oil Is Sold by Sayre's Drug Store And All Good Druggists

Make up your mind today that you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well.

You've probably been, like a lot of other people, convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salve (some of them are very good) but in the big majority of cases these sticky salves simply clog the pores and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to Sayre's Drug Store or any other good druggist today and get an original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly conquer you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Fig Syrup," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without gripping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless, "fruitly laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good "side cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, sold by "California Fig Syrup Company."

DOESN'T GO FAR ENOUGH

Congress has passed and the President has signed the law which prohibits the sending through the mails of any firearms of the sort that can be concealed on the person.

This law is clearly aimed at the practice of buying revolvers through the mail order houses, the same being sent to the purchasers without question as to why the weapon was bought or for what use.

It will curb the sale of them to some extent, but not stop it. It is a good law as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough.

What is needed in the country is not only a law that prohibits the shipment of the weapons through the mails, but one that prohibits the sale except for specific and well defined purposes.

Men who would commit a crime will get the weapon somewhere and somehow. The whole issue revolves on how to make the obtaining of such so difficult that few will attempt to get over the barricades put up. And what is true of the weapon is true as well of ammunition. The curb on one should be the curb on the other as well.

There are legitimate uses for the small firearms. The possession of the same should be confined wholly to those persons who can and have proved that they intend them only for those uses.

SOME HOPES FOR 'EM YET

The Chinese, it is said, are incapable of self-government; hence it is the white man's duty to maintain concessions and courts and armed camps on Chinese territory.

Maybe it's so. But listen to this:

In Tsing Tau a certain editor was a violent critic of the Chinese police administration. Did the police take violent measures against him? Ah, no. They gave him a job as "police advisor." Now the criticism is stopped.

No American politician could have taught them anything smoother than that. Who says they can't govern themselves? There was a trick turned in the most approved American manner.

BUILDING A CITY

A writer in a current magazine observes "if the newspaper is just a little better than its town, the latter is the gainer thereby."

Towns and their newspapers usually lag or lead together. Progressive journalism is the unfailing tonic of the lethargic community, but it is equally true that a lifeless newspaper can seriously retard the development of its community.

There is no better community asset than a home newspaper equal to the needs of the community. While a poor newspaper is better than none to the individual reader, that does not hold true for the town.

What can a good newspaper do for its community? It can serve as the town's messenger to the outside world. It must take the leadership in all community projects if they are to be successful. It is the line of communication between local government and citizen. It is to the newspaper that all organizations turn for assistance in public welfare movements and without that assistance they face failure.

The newspaper reaps the reward of its initiative by sharing in the general improvement of business and community affairs it has been instrumental in bringing about. The good newspaper deems it a pleasure to serve its community and its readers and is fully aware that it is only through giving a full measure of service that it can progress and prosper.

TO REPRESENT OHIO

Judge Florence Allen of Cleveland, member of the state supreme court, has been named Ohio's most illustrious woman by Governor A. V. Donahue.

She will represent this state at a women's luncheon in the Chicago Coliseum next May at which the most illustrious women of each state, selected by the governors, will attend.

Judge Allen is remembered for having handled both criminal and civil cases with masculine energy. She was elected common pleas judge in 1921, serving there until 1923 when she was appointed to the supreme bench of the state.

Whom the gods would destroy they first equip with the notion that they could lick the world.

Beauty and brains seldom go together because both are seldom needed.

GREETINGS

When I was young, in Maryland,
Strangers on a highway meeting,
Saluted with a friendly hand,
And passed a cordial, smiling greeting.

When I grew up and came to town,
I kept on nodding there, and speaking
To people passing up and down,
You'd think I'd come from Ind or Peking!

They stared at me, they drew away
As though I were a little crazy,
Till human friendliness, each day,
Seemed more fictitious and more hazy.

I make my greetings, now I'm wise,
To youngsters, waving snowy mittens;
To those who see with warmer eyes
Nice friendly puppies, birds and kittens!

THE INVISIBLE CAUSE OF DIABETES

Diabetes is one of the most destructive and fatal of the chronic diseases. It is extremely common at all periods of life, attacking and destroying children in great numbers; it is frequent in its occurrence in middle age, and is even a frequent visitor among the aged and infirm.

Until within a few years it was uniformly fatal in children and adults. Before the discovery of insulin I cannot recall the case of a single child or young person who was attacked with diabetes that did not succumb to it, in spite of anything and everything that science could do to control its ravages.

It would be discovered that a certain child was passing an enormous quantity of urine for no explainable reason, examination would show that the urine contained a large quantity of sugar and this meant that sugar in poisonous quantity was circulating in the blood. Loss of appetite, in-stead of thirst, emaciation and prostration quickly followed, and at most before the physician could draw up a campaign of treatment or bring experts to his assistance, the child would be beyond relief, and in a few weeks all would be over.

With people in mature life there was often a history of prolonged strain, unusual demands upon the nervous system, great irregularity in food and drink, and particularly, excesses in alcohol. If such people had good resisting power and sensible enough to lead a very careful and well-ordered life, the disease might be brought under control, and I have no doubt there have been cases which were practically cured but which were quite amenable to relapse if the most rigid restrictions upon the methods of living were relaxed. That is, a diabetic had to regard himself as an invalid in order to retain his hold on life.

With the aged diabetes was a less severe, less serious disease, men and women who had it often lived for years in comparative comfort, able to work and get considerable enjoyment out of life, but always with the understanding that a sword was hanging over their head which any unexpected commotion might cause to drop.

And then we came to the period, only a few years ago, when insulin was discovered by Banting and his colleagues. This gave us the information that the cause lay in the pancreas and not in the nervous system.

LOCAL TALENT WILL AID POLICE BENEFIT

Gay Paris, with its fascinating women, sparkling cafes, gallant boulevardiers, its underworld where the notorious Apache holds undisputed leadership, is faithfully portrayed in the film version of "The Rat," the photo-play directed by Graham Cutts and starring Mae Marsh, Ivor Novello and Isabel Jeans.

This show will be the attraction at the City Hall Theater March 17 and 18, under auspices of the Xenia Police Department.

A two-reel comedy will also be shown. In addition home talent will furnish music as another attraction and local talent will provide snappy songs and clever dancing.

Sale of tickets and publicity has been placed in charge of Patrolman Fred Jones, who reports that the sale is proceeding above expectations.

Time and Tide

THE WORLD OF FINANCE

The moment business ends in the afternoon, a surprising change suddenly takes place in the big office buildings in every American city. Kings of finance touch elbows in the elevators with dapper young clerks; all are hurrying to the golf links, hotels, on pleasure bent—home at last.

But now, in the halls, lobbies and offices in place of the men of money we behold new characters, dress, habits and ambitions.

No one expects a scrub woman to wear fine clothes. That is foolish. You are well dressed when you are dressed for work or play. But these miserable creatures in rags and carrying mops and pails look rather strange in the United States at this late day, with all our labor saving devices. There are thousands of women-drudges in Europe, especially the women who scrub the streets of Paris; but we hardly expect to go on that way, in our country.

The hope is that in time American as well as French scrub-women will be liberated from their present drudgery. But from the beginning of the world a few men have asked, sometimes out of mere curiosity, again angrily:

"Distribute the earth as you will, the problem ever remains, who is to do it? Which of us is to do the hard dirty work for the rest, and for what pay? The pleasant clean work and for what wages? And finally, who is to do no work at all, and for what pay?"

Hard questions to which there is no definite answer. The foregoing summary is from the pen of the celebrated Mr. Ruskin, who was a rich man and a great architect. In the gilded palaces that he visited he saw no scrub woman, or if he did you find nothing about it in his artistic descriptions.

Whatever the future may bring, the present business of the scrub-woman is to take pails of water, her broom, dust-rags, mop, dilgently the marble floors, polish brass, shine plate-glass windows. Locked in the immense vaults in her building are tens of millions of dollars, but that's none of her business.

Her skirt is wet, her hands red, rough and swollen; but she has a most necessary place in the world of finance.

How to Achieve Beauty

MAKE EVERY MOMENT OF YOUR DAY COUNT FOR BEAUTY

Beauty in the Day's Diversions.

When women tell me they would love to be better looking by taking a course in beauty culture, only they have absolutely no time for it, I put to them mildly the questions: But do you really use every minute you have to advantage, or do you waste many of them unconsciously?

You slur them over, or drag them out needlessly over something you are doing?

You should "cut corners" in the hours of the day. And you should never think of the latter as divided into definite stretches, but as made up of minutes which can be snatched here and there from the whole. And then I sometimes think of time as elastic. As being, for example, like that analogy of the trunk packed with tiny pieces of rag and yet which one can never imagine reaching a point where just one more tiny rag could not be inserted somewhere.

Did you ever, I ask these same

KELLYGRAMS

EXTRA COOKIES, GOOD WILL, AND CHARACTER

I sat before an open fire one night, with a crowd of old friends who were discussing grave topics ranging all the way from the number of neckties a man needs to salaries for wives. Then we got to talking about boyhood jobs.

One of the group was John C. Mellett, of Indiana, who writes race track and other dashing yarns for magazines under the name of Jonathan Brooks. John told of working as clerk in his father's bakery and how he disagreed with his father on a question of business policy. His father told him always to give thirteen cookies when anybody bought a dozen.

"What good will it do to give thirteen to everybody?" John asked his father. "If you give thirteen to an occasional customer he will be pleased, but if you give an extra cookie to everybody buying a dozen, they will just accept it as a matter of course, and be no better satisfied than if they got only twelve. There will be no distinction about getting thirteen."

"The point is," insisted the father, "that it creates good will to give a little more than you're expected to. People will remember that extra cookie much longer than you think."

"Maybe they did," remarked John, in telling us about it, "but I never found out."

I had forgotten all about that conversation, but one night, some months later, in New York, I chanced to mention John Mellett. A comely young matron spoke up and inquired:

"Is this John Mellett a kind of quiet, red-headed fellow?"

I admitted that in a general way her description was accurate.

"I'll bet he's the same boy I used to know, out in Indiana," she exclaimed. "Years ago my mother would send me to buy bread and cakes at his father's bakery. If I bought a dozen cookies he always gave me an extra one!"

While I trust there's no moral to this truthful chronicle, perhaps there is. It at least proves that when a man does a little more than his contract calls for, people are impressed and remember.

Maybe that extra cookie not only made a favorable impression on customers but left its imprint on the minds of the clerks. Perhaps John Mellett works a little harder because his father got him into the habit of giving more than people paid for.

I'm thinking, too, of John's brother, Don Mellett, the Cantos editor, who, despite threats, went right ahead doing what he felt was his duty, until he died heroically from an assassin's bullet. I wonder if a household where the father believes in giving an extra cookie isn't a first-rate place for a hero to spend his boyhood.

SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Religion is the cheapest commodity today for a large majority of Christians. ... It costs more to own and keep up an automobile in this modern age than it does to belong to the church. Recreation for the average man is many times more expensive than is his Christianity."—Rt. Rev. C. E. Woodcock, Episcopal bishop of Kentucky.

HEROES HONORED

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Fallen heroes of the 166th infantry regiment were honored here by members of Columbus chapter of the Ohio Rainbow Division Tuesday night when a memorial tablet was unveiled at Memorial Hall, Federal Judge Benson W. Hough, commander of the regiment, presiding.

The exercises were held on the ninth anniversary of the regiment's entrance into the front line trenches in the Lunenburg sector.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Wreckers will soon begin the task of demolishing the home of the late Senator William A. Clark, of Montana, at Fifth Avenue and Seventy-seventh St.

Clark put thirteen years and $7,000,000 into that dream mansion, with its gold ceilings, marble swimming pool and its grand staircase with a medley of stones from every quarry in the world. When it was finally sold the other day it went for less than $3,000, more than half of which represented the value of the land.

The house was built by the senator with appalling solidity. He meant it to endure for the Clark heirs for generations.

Its foundations were carried in caissons through sixteen feet of water to bed rock, thirty feet below the level of the sidewalk.

It was built in a day when red plush and gold leaf interiors were the latest word. It was more expensive than Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's house, more costly than the twin Astor houses or the Riverside drive mansion of Charles M. Schwab.

He bought a marble quarry, a granite quarry, a stone finishing plant, a woodwork factory and a decorative casting plant before he got through building, so that no contractor could take advantage of him.

He had thirty bathrooms installed, three elevators, four breakfast rooms, two roof gardens, one Turkish bath, four picture galleries and a $50,000 organ.

Into the mansion went furniture that had belonged to Marie Antoinette, a ceiling by Fragonard, a tablecloth copied from one in the Vatican. The sixteenth century billiard room contained a painting by Boutet de Monvel and opened into a Chinese room copied from one in the imperial palace at Peking.

A silver center-piece 42 by 25 feet, representing Neptune ruling the seas and Aphrodite rising from her shell, enlivened the main dining room with its 800-piece gold dinner set that cost its proud owner $120,000.

The $5,000 tortoise shell bird cage had feed cups of jade, backed with ivory statues of Buddha. The senator's own office was done in fluted mahogany. Every floor had a dining room and nursery. Each of the 121 rooms had a secret entrance and exit.

In 1910, twelve years after work had been started, the senator moved in and even then it was some months before the place was sufficiently settled for Mrs. Clark to join him.

The Four Hundred of that day were much amused by Senator Clark, with his "wild western whippersnappers" and his wider taste of home building. Visiting foreigners also sniffed at his house, calling it "ridiculous" and terming it "horrible."

Arnold Bennett, on a tour of New York, looked at the Clark mansion and remarked: "It spoils all the other houses around it."

But nothing shook the faith of the Montana senator in his architectural "triumph."

Senator Clark's collection was the marvel of its day; but "those were the days of innocence." Even in the later years of his life art dealers in Europe considered him easy prey. He thought nothing of flinging away $50,000 or $100,000 for a painting just to get it away from some other millionaire who had perhaps snubbed him socially.

What the Metropolitan Museum of Art thought of Clark's artistic taste was disclosed when it tactfully refused the collection after his death. Though the former miner had prided himself on his twenty-two Corots and twenty-one Monticellis, an official of the Metropolitan said the best things in the collection were the tapestries and porcelains.

He provided in his will for the upkeep of the mansion until his daughter comes of age in 1928, but a few months after his death Mr. Clark obtained permission of the court to close the place and move to his Santa Barbara home.

Soon it will be dismantled and a modern apartment house will rise on the site of this sepulchre of absurdity. Appropriately enough, it will be the most expensive in the land. Its suites will sell for about $200,000 a room.

The Theatre

By FLEET SMITH

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—About the first thing a young man in the newspaper business learns is that a true story is not only more interesting, but also more convincing than one blended with fiction. Movie press agents tell me the same thing. They often relate stories, absolutely veracious, which they do not broadcast for fear that wary editors will doubt their truthfulness.

For instance, here is one of those improbable sounding tales. Recently Thomas Meighan passed up a chance to earn $200,000 (and more, perhaps) for six or eight weeks stage play, because he wished to play fair with his vast army of fans. The club of Meighan admirers is by all odds the most populous in the movie business, and their loyalty exceeds their numbers. They have stuck to Tom for years, through good, bad and indifferent pictures.

The facts of Meighan's $200,000 bean geste are these: Meighan's contract with Paramount, after eleven years' association with the firm, had expired. For reasons best known to himself, Meighan showed no haste to sign a new agreement although his relations with Adolph Zukor, Jesse Lasky, etc., were most amicable. Joseph Schenck, husband of Norma Talmadge, shrewdly reckoned that by producing a picture co-starring Meighan and Miss Talmadge, he would come pretty close to stopping traffic around theatre entrances. He offered Meighan a kindly salary which would guarantee him $200,000 for the film. Meighan assented but stipulated that he must approve the final scenario. When he did read this, he perceived that the picture would be a Norma Talmadge starring picture, with Meighan merely a conventional leading man. He would simply be selling his name. He flatly declined to go through with the arrangement. While he signed a new contract with Paramount almost immediately, he did not commence work for several months, so that he could have picked up that $200,000 just as easily as not.

How many college football heroes, professional ball players, opera singers, stage actors and business men can you think of who would have shown the same lofty scruples about exploiting their followers?

Did you ever hear the yarn of how close the movies came to losing Richard Dix? All this happened as a matter of fact, before Dix ever had worked in pictures. Readers of the screen's contemporary literature, are, of course, acquainted with Dix's background as a trouping stage player—also how he was advised emphatically by Chaplin that he never would make good in pictures because of a nose broken while he was playing football in St. Paul as a youth. But it is not known that Dix, sick and tired of the uncertainties of an actor's life, had quit the game, had accepted a job as an oil prospector in Mexico. Before entering the country of oil, Tia Juana and senoritas, Richard stopped off to visit his mother and sister in Los Angeles. On the street he met a movie director who needed a leading man. This director knew Dix's work as a stage player and asked him to try his luck in films. Dix yielded. Sam Goldwyn, then head of the old Goldwyn company, saw Dix in the production and signed the young man to a contract.

A year sped by. Young Mr. Dix scored heavily in two notable photoplays, "The Christian," and "Souls for Sale." Then he and Conrad Nagel met one day and confided their troubles. Dix didn't like the roles the Goldwyn company was handing him and Nagel felt the same way about the way Paramount was treating him. The two actors decided to swap their jobs. They advised each other about details of their contract. "Be sure and have them insert a clause allowing you $5000 a year to handle your fan mail," said one.

For Dix the move was golden. Immediately Cecil B. DeMille chose him for a fine role in "The Ten Commandments" and on the momentum of that popular spectacle Dix rode into stardom, an enormous salary and such popularity that his weekly mail averages between 4,000 and 5,000 letters. Nagel never has stood a chance of opportunity to fulfill the ambition he promised he showed several years ago.

Central Ends Home Season With Defeat By Preps

DAYTON JINX WORKS OVERTIME AS LOCALS ACCEPT 27-24 LOSS

BLUE And White Outplays Visitors In Second Half Too Late To Overcome Big Lead Gained By Preps During First Half

With the well-known "sickening thud," Central High School's basketball team supplied the season's outstanding upset by losing to the University of Dayton Preps 27 to 24 in a ragged and disappointing exhibition, for the final home appearance of the season at the local gym, Wednesday night.

It becomes increasingly hard to fathom the Blue and White quintet this season. Seemingly Xenia is an in and out five with plenty of native ability but not much get-together, playing like wonders one night and then like green men the next.

Possibly it is the jinx the Baby season. Frequently, however, Flyers appear to hold over the locals that has something to do with this unlooked-for setback. Ghosts of other years and echos of yesterday returned to haunt one's soul Wednesday night.

It was in the first half that the local team was certainly a foul ball, the half-way post finding Coach Kolb's favorite team trailing 21 to 10. In the second half the Preps relaxed somewhat and Central regained its composure and picked up to some extent outscoring the Flyers 14 to 6 and holding them to a single field goal.

The Preps took a 7 to 0 lead in the first period and Xenia, struggling against defeat that was increasingly hard to realize the closer it loomed, never could get out in front.

It is probably better to pass over the first two periods. In brief Xenia's defense went literally to pieces and the offense never could get going.

Central came out after the Flyers in the second half and as the Blue and White slowly picked up, play became as wild as anything ever seen on the floor. The game degenerated into anything but a parlor affair and the locals fought their hearts out for victory but to no avail—the jinx was there.

Doak caged a foul to start the third period. Huston, playing like all-possessed, rang up his first basket and quickly duplicated. Hill shot a foul and then Brady, diminutive prep forward, made three throws in rapid succession. Flanagan hit the net from the field and the foul line and Huston made two short shots from impossible angles followed by a bucket by Marshall from mid-floor.

Two minutes to play and victory in sight the Preps began "freezing" the ball. Stalling is dangerous for the team using it, requires skill and often proves a boomerang, but the Flyers had perfected the art and there was no further scoring activity upon the part of Xenia.

Two Prep players, Reagan and Lang, both guards, were forced out of the game in the second half on four personal fouls. The Preps were then in jeopardy several times but their abundance of reserve material enabled the team to keep out in front. It was dogged perseverance that brought victory. Both teams went wild and played erratic ball in the closing minutes of the game but Xenia had awakened from its slumbers too late.

Brannin, director of athletics at Steele High School, and a graduate of the Springfield, Mass., Y. M. C. A. College, refereed the contest, and may come in for just criticism for permitting the rough type of game allowed. He was probably impartial but cleaner play was sadly needed.

One great fault with Xenia is its pressing need of a back guard. Coach Kolb, of the Gauthier school, has drilled into his players the Ohio Wesleyan type of play that has met with great success this

COBB'S $60,000 AGITATES BABE RUTH: ASKS $100,000

Babe Ruth, while breaking into the movies in Hollywood, is conducting long distance salary negotiations with the Yankees and getting adamant for an increase over his $52,000 because of Cobb's reported $60,000 contract with the Athletics. He wants $100,000. Photos show the Bambino being made up for the camera, and Cobb with his new uniform.

REASON FOR ITALY REJECTION GIVEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Italy's real reason for rejecting President Coolidge's disarmament conference proposal was due to the Italian government's unwillingness to engage in any conference without assurance that she would be accorded equal equality with France, it developed here today.

Reports that Italy has made this plain in a "secret note" which accompanied the formal published communication were denied at the state department today. The department admitted that the Italian ambassador made "certain verbal explanations."

WILBERFORCE QUINTET LEAVES ON EXTENDED EASTERN TRIP

Wilberforce University's basketball squad departed Wednesday on an extended Eastern road trip during which five or six games will be played in the next seven days and many of the leading college teams in the East will be met.

During the trip Wilberforce will engage Howard University at Washington, D. C. and the famous Morgan College team of Baltimore, Md., recognized as the colored collegiate court champions of the country in the past two years.

The latter contest will mark the opening of athletic relations between the two schools. New York and Philadelphia will also be visited by the Wilberforce quintet. The team expects to be gone one week.

Wilberforce has played no regular schedule this season, limiting its engagements to non-conference Ohio teams, because of the uncertainty and delay in appointment of a basketball coach.

Following the resignation of Dean Mohr, no action was taken for some time, but the situation was finally clarified somewhat with the announcement that Coach Graves, football mentor, would also direct the team on the basketball court this season.

Wilberforce lost its first three games of the season to independent teams but has since improved to such an extent that no further defeats have been recorded.

A new star, in woman's golf, looms on the horizon when Miss Edith Quier defeated Miss Bernice Wall, in the first round of the woman's gold championship, recently in Florida.

RETAIL MERCHANTS DISCUSS NEW LIGHTS

General discussion of various projected activities designed for civic betterment and to increase in scope the work of the organization, featured the regular monthly meeting of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association at City Hall Wednesday night.

The meeting was an unusually brief one. Boulevard lighting for the streets of Xenia was one of the topics discussed. The next meeting of the association will be held the last Tuesday in March.

READ WHAT SAYRE'S DRUG STORE HAS TO SAY ABOUT DARE'S MENTHA PEPSIN

When you have any trouble with your digestion, such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can give only partial relief.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by Sayre's Drug Store and all live druggists with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will do no doubt help you. —Adv.

An Every-day Story

Mrs. A. J. Crabtree
COVE, Ohio.—"In February, two years ago, I took down with the 'flu' had pneumonia in my right lung. In March a baby girl came. I was in an awful condition, was losing flesh all the time. I weighed only 107 pounds; my average weight was 156. I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the 'Pelllets' in August and after I had taken two bottles I began to feel better and continued to improve. Now I weigh 158. Dr. Pierce's medicine if given a thorough trial, will do wonders."—Mrs. A. J. Crabtree, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 24.

Obtain this famous "Prescription" now, in tablets or liquid, from your druggist. Write Dr. Pierce, "President" Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., if you desire free medical advice. —Adv.

ARRANGE FUNERAL FOR RAIL CROSSING VICTIM FOR FRIDAY

Funeral services for Gertrude Neff, 17, who was instantly killed when the touring car driven by her father, Leroy Neff, of near Jamestown, was demolished by a west-bound Pennsylvania passenger train at the Jamestown Pike crossing early Wednesday morning, will be conducted at Concord, O., at 11 o'clock Friday morning with interment in the Concord Cemetery.

The body was taken in charge Wednesday by F. E. Burr, Jamestown funeral director, and will be removed to Concord, where relatives of the family live, early Friday morning, the funeral party leaving Jamestown at 8 o'clock.

The crash victim is survived by three sisters besides her mother and father, Leroy and Cora Neff, who were also injured in the accident.

Mrs. Neff will be confined to Espey Hospital for some time. It is believed while recovering from lacerations, bruises and a deep gash on the forehead, sustained in the crash. Dr. W. A. Galloway, railway surgeon, declared Thursday her condition showed slight improvement but that she will recover.

Mr. Neff was taken to the offices of a Xenia physician and, although but slightly out and bruised, was in a dazed condition for a time. Coroner F. M. Chambliss announced he will probably make a report of accidental death, and that there will be no need to hold an inquest.

Moral in Movie

ORAN RICHEY

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927
NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24.—The movies are often accused of making bad men out of good boys, but that can be proved as easily as it can be shown that one photoplay made a better man of an escaped convict.
He's free today.
For a motion picture brought Oran Richey, 22-year-old escaped convict from Birmingham, Ala., to the realization that life was not worth living without his wife and babies. He gave himself up to New Orleans police.
In the obscurity of a 15-cent cinema in Canal St., the young husband who admits forging a check, came to the conclusion that it would be best for him to go through the hell of an Alabama chain gang once more so that he might return with cleansed hands to the girl wife he married when he was sixteen.
Flashing on the silver screen was the story of man fleeing from the law, picturing his misfortunes, and the ending agony of his conscience. The movie story was parallel to the last few months of the life of Oran Richey, and, moreover, the story of the screen fugitive included a wife with wind-blown hair and chubby babies.
The youth escaped after serving three months of a nine-months' term.
When Richey came out of the picture house, he went up to two policemen and revealed his identity. A surprise was in store for young Richey. While he waited in the New Orleans jail to be returned to Birmingham, there came a wire from police there refusing to pay for Richey's transportation. Consequently he was released.

"DON'T ASK!"

The intelligence test is proving that four out of five think that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is some sort of a drink. The fifth thinks it's a maple syrup.

You don't have to go home now to be questioned. When you step in a salon your hostess asks you who shot Lincoln. You should tell her not to touch a thing until the coroner comes!

The art of conversation is in again, which is hard on those who counted on sleeping out.

It used to be that you could listen to your hostess with a far-away expression until a kick from your wife brought you closer.

Everyone seems to have gone crazy on education, just as though a good party weren't an education in itself! They must bring up the

(which is hard on the children, really), people have been trying to force their heads to fifteen: And to bring up the average, they ask you questions like "Who wrote the Old Oaken Bucket," when the important thing is to note the contents.

No one ever knows the answers to the questions except the hostess, and she has to peek!

It should be embarrassing to her to find out what dumb-bells her friends are; it's better to let well enough alone, he'll sleep it off!

There is the precocious child who appears and tells you the correct distance across the Atlantic. He ought to know, he was the only one up on deck!

And there is the conscientious lady who wants to be questioned.

THE INTELLIGENCE TEST

Leaning Tower of Pisa just when everything is beginning to sway! No one is satisfied to let you take a comfortable chair; they must keep you on the alert.

The hostess takes your coat and hat and asks you how the Statue of Liberty got lit before you have a chance to try it yourself! She wants to know all about the longest bridge in the world and the correct answer is NOT her card games!

Even since the late war, when it was discovered that the average mind was that of a child of ten but who never gets beyond the first grade. Her last real sport was riding on the handle bars. She's a lady of the old school and they never could teach her very much.

If they would only ask questions that you would like to know the answers to, such as, how to signal a bootlegger. (The answer is, hang out your tongue!) If they would ask "Who was that blonde I saw you with last night?" and you would say "That was just my share of Gentleman Preferred," that would make some sense! Or would it! Don't ask!

MEDICS WORRIED BY CANCER INCREASE; SEEKING NEW CURES

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Cancer is definitely on the increase, but it can be cured. There is only one disease worse than cancer, and that is the fear of cancer. Knowledge will bring freedom from that fear.

With these remarks Sir Berkeley Moynihan, president of the Royal College of Surgeons, and one of England's greatest cancer experts, opened the first of a series of public lectures on the fundamental causes and treatment of cancer.

The series are noteworthy for the fact that this is the first time in the history of the English medical profession that the public has been taken into its confidence.

"If the law of averages holds good," continued Sir Berkeley, "one hundred people in this hall tonight will die of cancer," a statement which caused little nervous ripples of laughter to run around the lecture hall.

"The truth is," continued Sir Berkeley, "that in this country alone one person of every seven dies over the age of thirty of cancer; fifty thousand people die yearly in England and Wales, and it has been estimated that 500,000 lives are annually lost in the civilized countries of the world from this disease.

"Cancerous bones, dating from 3,500 years before Christ, have been taken from tombs near the Pyramids; cancer was described more than twenty centuries ago by Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, and it has never since ceased taking its daily toll of lives. It is the Captain of the Men of Death, the King of Terror to the world.

"If the medical profession can help the public to learn that it is not cancer, but ignorance with regard to cancer, that is in part responsible for their horror of it, and if we can assure them that cancer, under certain conditions, is capable of complete removal.

Says Allenrh
Banishes Rheumatic
Pains and Twinges

The First Pint Bottle Must Show
Results or Money Back. Could Any Offer Be Fairer.

Sayre's Drug Store and every druggist in this country is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer in this vicinity that if ALLENRHU, the enemy of rheumatism, does not stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with the twinges of Rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrh has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished often in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitiable and where the sufferer was almost helpless.

Druggists everywhere guarantee it as above in every instance.

Pile Sufferers

How Far Have You Gotten With Messy Ointments?

Don't be surprised that suppositories and salves haven't rid you of Piles. The most they can do is bring temporary relief. They never reach the cause—blood stagnation in the lower bowel.

Piles can be removed by an operation. Sure! But who wants to submit to the surgeon's knife when a harmless little tablet taken internally can banish the cause of Piles and bring real, lasting and honest-to-goodness relief?

Forget about an operation and stop using salves. Hem-Roid, the internal remedy discovered by Dr.
Leonhardt, should quickly rid you of Piles the same as it is doing for thousands of others or costs nothing.

Get a package of Hem-Roid today at Sayre's Drug Store or any druggist. It is absolutely harmless and if you aren't delighted with the results you can have your money back. —Adv.

My Powder For Girls

By Edna Wallace Hopper Countless girls and women asked me about my powder. I did not supply them at first. In fact I was paying $5 per box and only stars stars will do that.

But now I am having these powders made in the hundreds of thousands of boxes. And these boxes now sell at 50c and $1—the powders used by movie stars, the finest that skill can produce. All toilet counters supply them in my name.

There are two types. One is my Youth Cream Powder—a heavy cold cream powder that clings and stays.
I use that type. Many women prefer a light and fluffy powder, so I have the same powders made in that way, and the price is only 50c.

Let me send you some samples on little vanity tabs. Let me treat you to the finest powders in the world.
Mark and clip the coupon now.

shall we not be able to diminish
or even banish fear?
"Cancer mortality is increasing
despite the fact that more people than ever are being cured of the disease. It may surprise many to hear that cancer can be cured,
that the patient can be relieved forever from the disease. It is true.

"The operations practiced today
are more frequent, of greater extent, of greater safety, and are attended by a larger measure of permanent relief from the disease
than was the case twenty years ago.

"Unhappily, it is not infrequent for delay to be encouraged by the wasteful trial of other methods.
The 'cancer cure' is still a curse in the land, and the most pathetic
credulity as to his claims is shown by people who should know better.

"It is said that if we 'talk cancer' we shall make people 'think cancer.' We hope that it is true, for cancer is an unforgiving enemy, and once he has settled on his victim he never for one minute ceases to grow. The sooner you confront your foe the better
for you and the worse for him.

"Ignorance is a part of fear,
but fear does not contribute to the incidence of cancer. Fear should be the fear of delay, the fear lest a simple disease should become cancerous.

"There does not appear to be any hereditary predisposition to

cancer, but we can say that it is not caused by any special foods or absence of special foods. The finest advice we can give you is:
'Don't delay; don't conceal; be medically examined if you have the least suspicion that anything
is wrong with you.'

shall we not be able to diminish
or even banish fear?
"Cancer mortality is increasing
despite the fact that more people
than ever are being cured of the disease. It may surprise many to hear that cancer can be cured,
that the patient can be relieved forever from the disease. It is true.

"The operations practiced today
are more frequent, of greater extent, of greater safety, and are attended by a larger measure of
permanent relief from the disease
than was the case twenty years
ago.

"Unhappily, it is not infrequent
for delay to be encouraged by the wasteful trial of other methods.
The 'cancer cure' is still a curse in
the land, and the most pathetic
credulity as to his claims is shown
by people who should know better.

"It is said that if we 'talk cancer' we shall make people 'think
cancer.' We hope that it is true,
for cancer is an unforgiving enemy, and once he has settled on
his victim he never for one minute ceases to grow. The sooner
you confront your foe the better
for you and the worse for him.

"Ignorance is a part of fear,
but fear does not contribute to the incidence of cancer. Fear should be the fear of delay, the fear lest
a simple disease should become cancerous.

"There does not appear to be any hereditary predisposition to

cancer, but we can say that it is not caused by any special foods or absence of special foods. The finest advice we can give you is:
'Don't delay; don't conceal; be medically examined if you have
the least suspicion that anything
is wrong with you.'

SCORNS RICHES
TO AID SCHOOL

PROF. HENRY STEENBOCK
By HARGIS EARLYWINE

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927
MADISON, Wis., Feb. 27.—Although Prof. Henry Steenbock is a campus hero today, dispatches indicate that New York scientists are amused by published reports that the professor was offered $2,000,000 for the rights to a process "that will transfer life-sustaining ultra-violet rays into food in quantities as great as is found in cod-liver oil."

Manhattan authorities on radiation therapy are reported to have received news of the Steenbock process with, "How can he or anyone else patent a form of medical treatment which it has taken many years to develop, and which is even now in its first stages, with scores of scientific men working hard to perfect it?"

The University of Wisconsin professor flashed into the public eye when it was related that he had refused a $2,000,000 offer from a cereal company for his invention of adding to the calcium producing qualities of food.

"Prof. Steenbock is, like most of his profession, a relatively poor man, but he values the spirit of science and the ultimate benefit which it can bestow upon humanity above riches for himself," it was declared.

The teacher deprecates the flood of publicity that has followed the announcement. Overzealous friends are blamed for misstatements.

Three years ago his discovery was announced and heralded as a new vitamin, "Vitamin D," but Prof. Steenbock does not claim this himself. It is, however, he believes, a cure for rickets and other diseases, including some forms of tuberculosis.

The principle on which he worked is now generally known to scientists. It is the transference by ultra-violet ray of calcium producing qualities into ordinary foods. He has already found it can be done with anything except sugar and salt, and he has experimented successfully with a long series of foods—wheat, oats, corn, flour, cabbage, spinach, butter, milk, eggs, oleomargarines, hominy, lettuce, potatoes and rice.

Vitamin D, as it is called by some others than the discoverer, is the vitamin which has as its chief function in the animal body the building of bone tissues. Rickets, one of the scourges of babyhood, is failure of the vitamin to function, and Prof. Steenbock has produced foods that are exceedingly powerful anti-rachitics.

The important fact about the researches is that no doubt is left that sunlight is indispensable to man and beast, because it determines the efficiency with which calcium can be assimilated and retained. Calcium must be conserved, for it is not found abundantly in foods and feeds in proportion to the needs of the body.

Prof. Steenbock doesn't want any commercial offers for his discoveries. If they mean riches, he doesn't care. "Men's ambitions are either to make money or to do something for humanity. Mine is not concerned with money. I want to be the best food chemist in the world and I have only begun. If I ask that money, my life purpose would be perverted," he says.

DELICATE COLOR SCHEME HELPS NURSERY

By HILDA HUNT

A few well-chosen pieces of furniture are as necessary to the child's nursery as the few well-chosen words to the political speech—the fewer, the better, in both instances. What the small child needs is plenty of floor space and only such furniture as is necessary for use. But it should be selected with the same care as the furniture for the guest, or any other room in the house. Don't throw any old odd pieces into the child's room, if you want the child to be healthy, happy and safe. The color scheme, too, is important. It should be delicate, yet bright and cheerful. It is molding the child's character.

The sketch portrays a child's room done in corn color and robin's egg blue. Polka dots or robin's egg blue on a corn color wall paper give just the right delicate background. Wall paper is recommended for warmth and coziness.

It has an educational value, too, for what child is there that doesn't begin to count the patterns on the wall?

The woodwork is painted robin's egg blue, and a bright chintz with medium-sized figures in blues and reds and yellows, on a corn ground, "ties up" the decoration.

A special feature is the toy closet under the window seat, where the child can get at it easily. The coloring in the rag rug by the bed, the hooked rug by the toy closet, and the large center rug are in light blues and yellows. A low rush bottom, ladder back chair is used with a modern maple dresser, and an iron painted bed. This is the corn color background of the walls repeated.

Classes met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Tracy, last Tuesday evening. The occasion consisted of a devotional and business meeting followed by a good social time, after which refreshments of salad, sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

At the church—Sunday School, Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Riley Jones, Supt.

FAREWELL SURPRISE

The neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Shipley and family gave them quite a surprise Monday night, when they gathered at their home. The affair was a farewell to the Shipleys, who are leaving the neighborhood. They will move from the Stoops farm to the J. O. St. John farm, on the Hussey Pike. Those present were: Mr. Roscoe Beal and family, Mr. Steve Williams and son, Glessenger, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. LeValley, Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Strong, Mrs. M. A. Strong, Mr. Riley Jones and family, Mr. James Jones and family, Mr. Irvin Smith and family, Mr. Charles Toms and family, Mr. Elmer Fawcett and family, Miss Marcella Meyers, Mr. John Griffith, Ray Griffith and Leroy Hollingsworth. The evening was spent in a social way. Refreshments of fruit, candy and popcorn were served. All departed at a late hour wishing Mr. Shipley and family success in their new home.

NEW JASPER

Mr. J. W. LeValley has been re-employed by the County Commission as superintendent of Greene County Roads. He has been on the road department for fourteen years.

Mrs. Harvey Fields, Clifton Pike, is spending a few days with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Shirk.

There has been lots of moving the past week. G. W. Barnett moved on the Huffman place, near Blainstown; Mr. Ray Hook and family moved to the John Sutton farm; Mr. Earl Richards and family moved to the H. H. Conklin place, Mr. Shane and family, of Jamestown, moved to the Ada Smith place; Mace Stephens and family moved to the John A. Fudge place, south of Xenia, in the Union neighborhood, and Mr. Charles Wade moved to the D. O. Spahr place.

The Nail Keg Club will meet next Monday evening at the grocery and organize and elect officers for the coming year.

Word was received here last week of the death of John Clemens Bullock, 70, at his home in Sedalia, Mo. He was the son of W. H. and Tabitha Bullock, and was born near New Jasper. He was united in marriage to Miss Anna Ballard of New Jasper neighborhood about fifty years ago. They moved to Missouri about forty years ago and only visited their old home once in that time. Mr. Bullock is survived by his widow and one daughter, two sons, Frank, Portland, O., W. O. Bullock, Jamestown, Ohio, and Mrs. Jane Powers, of Xenia.

Whole Chesapeake Family Built to Rugged Health

L. M. McMasters, his wife and three children, all ill. Entire family used Tanlac and grew back to vigorous health. Give full credit to Tanlac for quick recovery

Mr. McMasters lives on Sims Creek Road, Chesapeake, Ohio. Of his recent trying experience he says: "For two years stomach and liver trouble had gradually run me down and when constipation developed that seemed the last straw needed to break me, and to make things worse all of my family were sick more or less all the time. My wife was subject to nervous attacks that kept us all awake at night. The children caught colds for no apparent reason and were confined to bed for several days at a time. None of us were getting the proper nourishment, and temporary relief would be followed by fresh attacks.

"We decided to give Tanlac a trial and it put us all on our feet. Our grocery bills are much higher now. We have no expense for medicines for we all eat heartily, and our food does us good. That was some time ago and we've all enjoyed the finest health since, eating and sleeping normally and getting full value out of life. All the credit belongs to Tanlac."

If overwork or neglect have left their mark on you, try Tanlac. It is nature's own body builder, made from herbs, roots and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

READ THIS FIRST:

BOBBIE RANSOM, a pretty little blond school teacher, is "movie struck" and wildly eager to break into pictures. Neither her father, a widower, nor ANDY, JEROLD, who wants to marry her, will lend her the money to take her to Hollywood. Finally she borrows $500 from the widow who is to be her father's second wife, and goes. At Mrs. WANGS', boarding house she meets STELLA DEL ROY, an extra girl in films. Through Stella she gets a few days' work at the Magnifica Studio, where ROY SCHULTZ, a famous director, shows a brief interest in her. She becomes great pals with his wife, LOTTIE, who once was a school teacher like herself. GUS MACCLOUD, Schultz' assistant-director, falls in love with her.

When she becomes discouraged, he lends her a money on a diamond bracelet that was Andy's Xmas gift to her, and he promises her a picture.

Lottie tells her that Gus is taking Roy out with him to wild parties at the home of MONICA MONT, a wild little gold-digging movie "vamp." Then Bobbie hears that Gus has a wife who's divorcing him, and decides not to see him any more until he's free. Stella drinks poison, leaving behind her a letter hinting at an unhappy love affair with Gus.

Gus's wife gets her divorce, but he doesn't say a word about it to Bobbie, who hears about it from Lottie Schultz.

Gus gets a picture of his own to direct and offers Bobbie a part in it. Then they quarrel because she won't let him make love to her unless he intends to marry her; and she tells him she doesn't want the part in the picture. He gives her a picture of a man who's divorcing his wife, and she goes to a violent love affair with Roy Schultz, that Lottie threatens to take their little daughter and leave him.

Andy writes to tell Bobbie that he has bought her old home, put up for sale after her father's death; and he adds that it will make a nice home for himself and Bobbie when they get married. Later he telephones long distance and pleads with Bobbie to come home, but she refuses. She's given herself six months to make good in Hollywood, and she's going to stick it out.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LIII
Spring comes early to California. And with the first of March Hollywood boulevard blossoms out like a country lane a-dutter with flowers.

The women—and especially the women of the films—put on dresses and hats of white and pink and heavenly blue and pale green, and go swaying down the famous street like flowers on foot.

The sight of them was fairly maddening to Bobbie Ransom, who loved pretty clothes just as any pretty young thing of twenty-three loves them and longs for them.

All of her clothes were becoming shabby. Her one string of imitation pearls seemed very short and small and dull compared with the lustrous new things that began to appear in the shop windows. Her kid gloves were tattooed with cleaner's marks, and her silk stockings were old and mended.

And yet I don't dare buy anything new," she told Mrs. Mangan one afternoon as they sat over a pot of green tea at the kitchen table. "I have just enough money in the bank to keep me going for a while—and that doesn't include any clothes, let me tell you."

She went upstairs and looked over the things that hung in her clothes-closet. Perhaps that hat would do if she put a new silk band in it. A white gardenia would freshen up her old blue serge suit. She dressed and went out onto the boulevard to buy some ribbon and a white cotton flower, and that was how she happened to meet Monica again.

Monica was almost pretty in a fawn-colored suit and hat. A fluffy fox scarf was around her shoulders and there was a bunch of violets on her breast. When she moved their fresh odor mingled with the strong scent of the perfume she was doused with.

"Hello, Bob," she said. She smiled, but her eyes were troubled as if she wondered how much Bobbie knew about the Roy Schultz affair. "I'm going across the street to buy some writing paper. Come along, and tell me all the news."

"News?" Bobbie laughed. "You're the one who knows all the news. I never hear anything of or see any body since Lottie Schultz went away."

Monica quickly changed the subject.

"I think I'll have my paper monogrammed," she said nervously, and they went into the little book shop near Highland avenue. "Don't you think a purple monogram on violet newspaper would be nice? And I could use purple ink, and have it performed with violet 'holly cats' wouldn't that be terrible?" thought Bobbie. "Purple ink and perfume!"

"Don't you think plain white paper is more—ladylike?" she asked aloud, but Monica shook her head.

"Ladylike? I don't want my writing paper to be ladylike!" she said with a snap. "I want it to be start!"—I want people to know that a letter is from me the minute they look at it! Being ladylike and refined never got anybody anywhere! It's being startling that counts!" She sat down and began to look over a book of monograms.

Left to herself, Bobbie opened some of the new books on the table beside her. One by Edna Ferber, one by Kathleen Norris, one by Hugh Walpole. She wished she could afford to buy all three of them. She loved books, and her small soft hands smoothed them as she laid them down.

The girl who managed the little shop came up and stood beside her. She was small and gray-eyed, and her linen smock matched her eyes. Bobbie found out afterward that her name was Gray, too—Patricia Gray.

"You like books, don't you?" she asked. "I can tell by the way you handle them."

They began to talk. First about books, and then about moving pictures. And then Bobbie found herself telling the gray-eyed girl all her lack of money. There was something about the gray-eyed girl that made her open her heart to her and tell her everything. She was like Lottie Schultz, full of sympathy and understanding.

"I need someone in this shop right now. Someone who knows about books and authors," she said, when she saw Monica getting up from her chair. "If you think you'd like to work here, come around tomorrow mornin' and I'll talk to you about it."

"I just had a job offered to me," Bobbie said when she and Monica were outside once more. "I don't know whether to take it or not."

"Selling books?"

Monica sneered. "Pretty tame sort of work for a film actress, isn't it?" she asked.

"Yes, but I need some new clothes," Bobbie replied. Her own shabby serge seemed shabbier than ever beside Monica's wonderful new fawn-colored clothes.

She looked at her own flat worn little purse, and then at Monica's fat handbag, crammed with bills, no doubt.

They were passing an open lot, and Monica drew her into it. "I'll get some food and take it home for supper," she said. "You go over on the other side and buy a steak while I get the rest of the stuff. We'll have a steak sandwich, eh?"

She gave Bobbie a little shove in the direction of the glass-covered counter where the meats were sold. "I'll get some food and take it home for supper," she said. "You go over on the other side and buy a steak while I get the rest of the stuff. We'll have a steak sandwich, eh?"

"No, thanks. I've got to hurry home," she said. She knew that she couldn't afford to pay a dollar or two for steak, whilst Monica spent about thirty cents on bread and a head of lettuce.

"What do you hear from your friend, Lottie Schultz?" she asked, trying to seem careless.

"I haven't heard from her since she left town, poor thing!"

"Poor thing! Peanut oil," snapped Monica with a flash of her blue eyes. "Why is she a poor thing? I haven't any pity for a woman who doesn't have brains enough to hold her own husband!" she thought she could go around looking like something out of a ten-cent store, and still have her husband crazy about her! And then she blames me because he fell for my silk stockings and choker beads and lipstick!"

Bobbie left her, wondering how much of what she had said was the truth. Did a man really fall for the pretty clothes and paint and perfume that a woman couldn't make a man see a woman's beauty unless he was set off by the right kind of clothes? Was it true that fine feathers made fine birds?

A—she wondered about it, a girl came along the boulevard toward her. She was tall and slender and not particularly pretty. But she wore a black satin hat that came down low over her eyes, showing a white triangle of powdered face with a scarlet mouth blazing in it. Her coat was black satin, and around her neck were rows and rows of pearls. Her skirts reached to her knees, and below them her slender legs flashed back and forth in the thinnest of black gauze stockings. On her slippers were big square silver buckles.

"And every man in sight is breaking his neck to look at her," said Bobbie to herself. "And they don't even see me in my shabby old rags."

The next morning she went first to the book store, and took the job that had been offered to her. It paid twenty-one dollars a week.

Left to herself, Bobbie opened some of the new books on the table beside her. One by Edna Ferber, one by Kathleen Norris, one by Hugh Walpole. She wished she could afford to buy all three of them. She loved books, and her small soft hands smoothed them as she laid them down.

That morning she sold one to Bobbie Ransom, who paid more than a hundred dollars for it. It was lettuce green, and it set off her yellow hair and deep brown eyes. So did the black satin hat that she bought.

When she walked out of Fil's, she had exactly $27 left in her purse, and she spent more than half of it on stockings and gloves and a new handbag of velvety black suede.

She took all of the things she bought home with her, and showed them to Mrs. Mangan.

Now Mrs. Mangan happened to know that Bobbie had been living on crackers and coffee and peanut butter for a long time, and so she simply poured up her dry lips and said that "a fool and her money were soon parted."

"Ah, but I have a job! I'll be earning money right along now," said Bobbie cheerfully. "And who knows but what I'll get a part in a picture one of these days!"

On Monday morning—the first Monday in March—she joined the vast army of girls who have failed in the movies. She didn't think of it in that way. She simply thought of herself as earning a little money while she waited for something better to turn up. And so she dusted books with a right good will, and sold them, too.

March passed. April came and went, leaving a million flowers behind it on the hills of Hollywood. May came in, warm and golden.

But for Bobbie Ransom, selling books in the cool dimness of the book store, one day was pretty much like all the rest. Life had lost its "pep" and its "pop" for her.

She put on her blue linen smock every morning, worked all day, took off the smock at six o'clock and went home to sleep.

In her clothes-closet, the lettuce green dress waited for the day when she should get a "call" from some studio or other. That call never came.

She read in the columns of the Film Mercury that Gus had finished the picture called "Hilda From Holland," and that he was shortly to begin another.

"I wonder if he'll have Monica in the new one, too," she was thinking one day, as she put some new books away on the shelves.

She looked up as the door of the shop opened, and saw him. It seemed like a dream to her, as he came down the aisle toward her in the tan-colored clothes she remembered so well.

She went dead white and dropped the book she had been holding. Her heart seemed to plump right down into her throat, and then bound into her throat.

He forced herself to speak to him as naturally as she could. "Can I sell you anything, today, MacCloud?" she asked, and he answered her instantly.

"Yes," he said. "Yourself."
